

Traci Heaton

P.O. Box 155
Fredonia, AZ 86022
(928)643-6738
traci@accountablekids.com

Traci Heaton is a dedicated homeschool mom, speaker, and author. She is the co-author and developer of the Accountable Kids parenting program which is helping parents promote accountability, responsibility, and character development in their children. This unique program is based on the principle of the “Law of the Harvest”; you reap what you sow.

The Accountable Kids program was created, not because Traci and her husband had all the answers but, because they had many of the same questions as other parents. The Heatons are now working closely with pediatricians, social workers, educators, counselors, and psychologists, and their efforts have been helpful for children with ADD, Autism, Aspergers, and behavioral problems. What started out as a way to create a more harmonious family life in their home, has grown into a thriving business and traveling ministry.

Traci’s presentations combine humor, practicality, and hands-on solutions to help families learn to balance choices and consequences in a fun, productive manner. Her ideas help children develop confidence and self-worth and experience the joy of being a vital, contributing member of the family.

Testimonials

"The Accountable Kids program provides a solid Framework to help families meet parenting challenges with more confidence and less stress."

Dr. Laura Schlessinger

"This program is a fantastic way to instill worthwhile principles into your kids and let them recognize the law of the harvest. Too many children today bear no responsibility for their behavior and then grow up without the skills or the motivation to succeed. This user-friendly program sets them on the path of accountability, which in turn, builds their self-worth."

Dr. Stephen R. Covey, author, The 7 Habits of Highly Effective People.

"Parents face the challenge of consistently structuring relationships with their children in a developmentally appropriate fashion. Accountable Kids is an excellent path of empowerment. Children will find increased opportunity to interact with their parents in a manner that fosters trust and responsibility. Family interaction quickly becomes aligned towards mutual goals, and relationships are strengthened. I highly recommend the Accountable Kids system for all parents who desire to obtain a consistently positive level of interaction with their children.:"

Daniel M. Sanderson, Ph.D. Clinical Psychologist

To say the Accountable Kids program is based on a behavior modification program, though, is like comparing a full-course Thanksgiving feast to a left-over turkey sandwich. In Accountable Kids, the quick fix of a typical behavior modification program has been transformed into a dynamic, comprehensive parenting plan that encourages parents to be thoughtful, active agents in the process of rearing their children."

Lisa Hains Barker, Ph.D., Clinical Psychologist

"The Accountable Kids program is based on the principle of the law of the harvest: you reap what you sow. The program allows your child to experience this principle on a continuing basis through choices and consequences. It is designed to foster positive behaviors and eliminate negative behaviors, enabling your child to feel valuable and empowered. The program allows your child to sow his own garden and be rewarded, or not rewarded, by his own efforts."

Rene Sundberg, M.Ed.

Presentation Titles

Raising Accountable Kids One Step at a Time (most popular workshop)

Discover ways to develop accountability, responsibility, respect, and confidence in your children by understanding how to apply essential parenting principles. This is an interactive workshop that provides hands-on tools that help children learn life lessons in a manner that will bring your family closer together. Traci's heartwarming stories shed new light on how to implement abstract parenting principles in a manner that is simple and fun for the entire family.

Organizing your Home from the Heart

Do you feel overwhelmed, overworked, and understaffed? Each parent has unique gifts to give their children yet often precious time is spent on the chaos of day to day living. Learn how to organize your home with a simple, back to basics approach. You will gain techniques on how to work together as a family enabling you to maximize your time and effort. Discover the inner peace that comes with organizing your life, home, and priorities from the heart.

One Mother's Story

Each year many parents go through the big debate of whether or not to homeschool their children. They wonder if they are competent to teach certain subjects, possess the organization to keep on track, and have the patience to be a parent, teacher, and spouse. During this workshop, Traci will share her secrets of homeschooling with a higher purpose. Traci's story reminds parents of the core reasons to homeschool and helps you gain an appreciation for your individual talents. You will discover ways to inspire your children to learn, develop life skills, and enhance character development in the home.

Character Counts

Character development can be a daily gift you give your children. Learn how to inspire your children to recognize and develop inner qualities that they will carry into the future. This workshop presents a variety of tools to engage children in character development with fun, interactive ideas. The lessons learned establish a solid foundation that can be relied on as your children encounter life's storms.

Discipline with Love

Discover three essential ingredients necessary to discipline your child with love. Learn to impose consequences, firmly and compassionately, without physical contact or losing emotional control. Discover key ingredients that help children develop the emotional awareness necessary to develop self-control, empathy, and respect for others. Gain concrete tools to break negative cycles and encourage positive behaviors. Yes, there is an avenue available for children to experience real world consequences in a safe environment that is respectful, yet effective.

Accountable Kids Made in Heaven

Our children are special gifts from God. Learn how to inspire your child to learn life lessons in a fun, hands-on manner that will develop character, work ethic, accountability, and responsibility. Discover how to help your child experience the “Law of the Harvest” that will foster positive behaviors and eliminate negative behaviors in your children. Gain techniques to enable your children to feel valuable and empowered. Become skilled in helping your children learn they can sow their own gardens and be rewarded, or not rewarded, by their own efforts.

Accountable Kid Stages and Ages

Have you ever wondered what chores are age appropriate? Why it seems some children lack initiative and others struggle with time management? This workshop discusses the various stages of children’s development, illustrated by insightful stories. You learn to distinguish age related attributes and focus on age appropriate values and behaviors that are developmentally appropriate for your child. This is a fun, interactive workshop that helps you understand stages of development, build confidence in your children, teach life skills, and bring the entire family together as a team.

Raising Accountable Kids Has Never Been So Much Fun

Raising Accountable Kids can be fun when your family works together as a team. Learn to implement simple strategies that bring peace and harmony into the home. This workshop presents hands-on tools that help teach life lessons in a fun interactive manner. You will gain simple methods to empower your child, shift responsibility, and strengthen your family as a whole.